A MESSAGE FROM THE ACTING PRESIDENT

Dear Graduates,

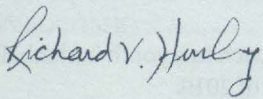

It gives me great pleasure to congratulate you for the remarkable achievement that is celebrated today. You have met the challenge of rigorous and stimulating course work, experienced one-on-one interaction with faculty members, and possibly engaged in cutting-edge research or innovative project development. Among the distinguished list of graduates today are debate champions, student government leaders, budding scientists, exemplary educators, All-American athletes, outstanding vocalists, and future Broadway stars.

The universal characteristic, though, shared by all gathered here is something unique to this institution: the Mary Washington experience. While intangible and hard to describe, it provides graduates an edge in their pursuits and propels them into significant careers.

I am grateful for the opportunity to be at the helm of this premier university, which has distinguished itself by its regional engagement and has carved out a niche among public liberal arts institutions. As the University of Mary Washington's reputation continues to rise, a diploma from this University will only increase in value.

On behalf of UMW, I am proud to congratulate you for reaching this milestone, and I wish you every success in future endeavors.

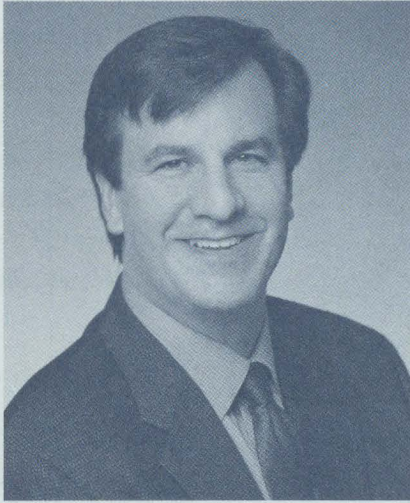

Sincerely,

Richard V. Hurley
Acting President

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

DANIEL R. WOLFE

Daniel R. Wolfe, a 1984 graduate of Mary Washington, is executive vice president of Worldwide Creative Operations for Universal Pictures. He earned a postgraduate degree in communication industries management from Emerson College in Boston. With Universal for nearly two decades, Wolfe is responsible for a team of 100 people who provide creative, technical, and other support for the marketing campaigns of all Universal's theatrical motion picture releases. His department is responsible for the strategic direction, development, and execution of all aspects of a film's marketing message for theatrical trailers, television commercials, print advertising, Internet, radio, theme park placement, and home entertainment.

During his tenure at Universal, he has held several positions, working his way up to becoming head of the department. Wolfe played an integral role in the integration of all NBC Universal's marketing services worldwide when General Electric purchased NBC Universal in 2004. He has worked on films embraced by consumers and critics alike, including It's Complicated, Couples Retreat, Fast and the Furious, Frost/Nixon, Mamma Mia!, Forgetting Sarah Marshall, American Gangster, The Bourne Ultimatum, and Knocked Up. Before starting at Universal, he was a manager of creative advertising at New Line Cinema and Orion Pictures. Through his successful restructuring of various in-house operations, he is credited with saving Universal millions of dollars annually while continuing to keep the company up to date with the latest marketing technologies.

In his long career at Universal, Wolfe has been involved in more than 350 films, including the Jurassic Park, Bourne, and American Pie franchises. Wolfe has been a part of 15 films that were nominated for Best Picture and four that won Oscars for Best Picture including Schindler's List, Shakespeare In Love, Gladiator, and A Beautiful Mind.

Wolfe is a member of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences and recently served as the southern California General Electric employee volunteer council leader. He is also a current member of the NBC/Universal Community Affairs Council.

In 2004, UMW named him its Distinguished Alumnus and in 2007, Wolfe served as UMW's Distinguished Graduate-in-Residence. He also is a member of the advisory board for the UMW College of Business.

Wolfe lives in southern California, has two children, and is a coach in a youth basketball league. His nephew, Thomas Wolfe, is a member of UMW's Class of 2010.

FACULTY EMERITI

Faculty members who have served the University of Mary Washington for at least 15 years and who have attained the rank of professor or associate professor are eligible to be considered for emeritus status. This honor, by action of the Board of Visitors, is bestowed this year upon the following distinguished members of the faculty.

William B. Crawley, Jr.

Rector and Visitors Chair and Distinguished Professor of History _____

William B. Crawley, Jr. holds a B.A. degree in Latin from Hampden-Sydney College and both a master's and a doctoral degree in history from the University of Virginia. He has served the University of Mary Washington in numerous capacities, both academic and administrative, since his arrival in 1970 as an assistant professor of history. For example, the Board of Visitors appointed him College Historian in 1988, the same year he was elected to the endowed Rector and Visitors Chair. He was awarded the title of Distinguished Professor in 1994. His service to Mary Washington included his appointment as director of the Center for Historic Preservation for four years, election as chair of the Department of History and American Studies by his departmental colleagues for eight years, and appointment as executive assistant to the President from 1983 until 1988. In 2006, Professor Crawley and his wife, Dr. Terrie Crawley '77, received Washington Medallions in recognition of their "extraordinary accomplishments, generosity, and service" to the University. Their commitment to Mary Washington subsequently included serving as the co-chairs of the Centennial Campaign. Dr. William Crawley's most recent publication, The University of Mary Washington: A Centennial History, 1908-2008, compellingly documents the establishment, growth, and development of the institution known as Mary Washington. Beyond all of his many accomplishments is the fact that he has been an extremely engaging and popular history professor. This was demonstrated by his receipt of the Grellet C. Simpson award for excellence in undergraduate teaching in 1994 and the Mary W. Pinschmidt award in 2005 as the professor the senior class is most likely to remember for having the greatest impact on their lives.

Margaret Williamson Huber

Distinguished Professor of Anthropology _____

Margaret Williamson Huber has conducted research on American popular culture, the Powhatan Indians of Virginia, and the peoples of Papua, New Guinea, since her arrival at Mary Washington in 1974. She earned a B.A. degree in anthropology from Bryn Mawr College and a Diploma, B.Litt., and D.Phil. in social anthropology from Oxford University. Her topical areas of expertise are gender, political organizations, and symbolic systems. Dr. Huber has an extensive dossier of professional publications and research presentations, which resulted in her being awarded the title of Distinguished Professor in 1994. Her outstanding accomplishments in the classroom and selfless attention to her students were recognized when she was honored with the Grellet C. Simpson award for excellence in undergraduate teaching in 2008. Her service to Mary Washington over the years is impressive and includes chairing the Department of Sociology and Anthropology as well as the promotion/tenure committee. She also has been a member of multiple University committees, including the self-study committee, the gallery advisory committee, and the faculty affairs committee. She remains active in her discipline by encouraging students to participate as presenters at annual conferences and by serving as secretary-treasurer of the Southern Anthropological Society.

Roy H. Smith

Distinguished Professor of Psychology _____

An expert in the areas of cognitive neuroscience, drug education, and alcohol abuse, Roy H. Smith has taught a wide range of courses during his 40 years at Mary Washington. He earned a B.S. in zoology from the University of Tennessee and a doctoral degree in physiological psychology from the University of Pennsylvania. A newly-minted Ph.D. in 1970, he began his career at Mary Washington College as an assistant professor of psychology. In 1999, the Rector and Board of Visitors awarded him the title of Distinguished Professor; in 2004, he received the J. Christopher Bill Outstanding Faculty Service Award. Dr. Smith is the author of numerous articles, presentations, and books on such topics as cognitive neuroscience, drug education, alcoholism, and alcohol abuse. In addition, he has received multiple grants for his research on these topics. He is an active participant in many community organizations, including the Chamber Chorale of Fredericksburg, Christ Church in Spotsylvania, and the Association for Retarded Citizens. His membership in numerous professional and scholarship organizations reflects his dedication to and passion for his love of teaching and his discipline.

Brenda E. Vogel

Professor and Director of Education Programs _____

As an education professor at Mary Washington for 33 years, Brenda Vogel has taught and advised hundreds of students. She has served, too, as architect and director of the University's popular master of education program, influencing thousands of local educators and school administrators. Dr. Vogel holds a B.F.A. degree from Virginia Commonwealth University and both a master's and a doctoral degree in education from Virginia Tech. She began her tenure at the University's Fredericksburg campus wearing many hats – professor, coordinator of teacher education services, director of field experiences, education department chair, and interim assistant dean of academic services. Her hard work and dedication were recognized in 1989 when she was the Mary Washington College nominee to both the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia and the Council for Advancement and Support of Education teacher awards. In 1999, she was asked to create and launch education programs at the campus poised to open in Stafford County. Taking input from student focus groups and education officials, Dr. Vogel crafted post-bachelor's teacher licensure and master of education programs. In August 2000, the first M.Ed. candidates enrolled. With Commencement 2010, approximately 770 people have received graduate education degrees. Her accomplishments are numerous, and in 2008, Dr. Vogel was honored with the Outstanding Faculty Award at the Stafford campus.

FACULTY EMERITA (POSTHUMOUSLY)

Christina Kakavá

Professor of Linguistics

Christina Kakavá joined the faculty of Mary Washington College in 1994 after earning her B.A. degree in Greek and English from the University of Athens and her M.S. and Ph.D. degrees, both in linguistics, from Georgetown University. She published extensively in sociolinguistics with a special emphasis on cross-cultural linguistics, issues of language and gender, and intercultural identities among bilingual speakers. Dr. Kakavá became an integral member of the University community, serving as chair of the General Education Committee and Curriculum Committee, as well as a member of the Faculty Senate, Global Awareness Committee, and Instructional Technology Committee. She took pride in being professionally affiliated with the American Association of Applied Linguistics, International Association of Applied Linguistics, and the Linguistic Society of America. The list of her refereed and invited research presentations is wide-ranging and sizeable. Her dedication to her students and colleagues was legendary, and she had an extremely strong sense of commitment to the undergraduate research opportunities available to her students. She directed many individual study projects and worked tirelessly with students on appropriate research methods for the study of language. In 2007, Dr. Kakavá led the President's Travel Club to Greece after spending numerous hours researching events and preparing all the needed details for the success of the trip. She died on Feb. 20, 2010, after a courageous three-year battle with cancer.

ADMINISTRATOR EMERITUS

LeRoy S. Strohl III

University Librarian

During his quarter-century tenure at Mary Washington, LeRoy S. Strohl III has guided the growth and direction of the University Libraries through a virtual explosion of information sources and technology. Not only did the amount of information swell, so did the number of sources from which it came – all accompanied by rapid and wide-ranging innovations in information technologies. Mr. Strohl presided over the transition from a card catalog to the library's first online circulation and catalog system. Library holdings have expanded to include numerous electronic books, an extensive array of online databases, and other non-print materials available to students, faculty, staff, and the public. Mr. Strohl was instrumental in the design of Simpson Library as well as the move to that site from Trinkle Hall. He also directed the opening of a second library at the Stafford campus. He has been active on numerous University committees, was an initial and long-time member of the Steering Committee for the Virtual Library of Virginia, and has participated in many Fredericksburg area community groups and organizations, such as the Bluemont Music Festival and the Rappahannock Rotary Club. Mr. Strohl earned a bachelor of arts degree in English and theology from Hanover College. He holds a master of arts degree in English literature and a master of library science degree from the University of Kentucky.

ACADEMIC CUSTOMS AND DRESS

The origins of many customs of the academic world can be traced to the Middle Ages, particularly the 11th and 12th centuries when the first European universities – Bologna, Paris, and Oxford – were founded.

In their original organization, the universities were like medieval corporations or guilds. In fact, the word “universitas” originally referred to any kind of corporation. The students at the universities were equated to guild apprentices, and so the completion of the apprenticeship was celebrated by a “commencement” marking the beginning of their careers.

In the 12th century, everyone wore gowns. The social and economic status of an individual was shown by the extra features, such as fur trimming, on the gowns. Cloaks with hoods were worn over gowns for protection in bad weather. Degrees began to be awarded in the 13th century, and different styles of gowns and different colors came to represent the various degrees and disciplines.

Over the centuries the styles of dress changed, and by the 17th century, the wearing of gowns by men had virtually ceased. But the universities, particularly those in Britain, continued to be conservative and strict in the manner of academic customs and dress. At Oxford, for instance, candidates for master’s degrees had to swear that they owned a gown and would always wear it at the proper times.

The first American universities were founded on English models. However, the wearing of academic dress was not universal and ceased during the Civil War. The custom was revived in the late 19th century, and in 1895 an academic custom code was adopted that, with modifications, is still used.

Most American universities have the standard black gown with the hood serving to distinguish the individual institution. Some American and European universities have adopted or preserved more distinctive gowns. There are three styles of gowns, distinguished mainly by the sleeves: the bachelor’s gown, with long pointed sleeves; the master’s, with a squared sleeve, cut so the forearm is free; the doctoral, with bell-shaped sleeves with three velvet bands.

The hood is the really distinguishing feature of modern gowns, indicating the degree (the width of the edging band), the discipline (the color of the band), and the college or university (the colors of the lining). Today’s graduates have hoods edged in white (B.A.), gold (B.S., BLS), or drab (BPS). Many faculty members will have blue edging indicating the Ph.D. degree. The faculty will be wearing hoods representing many distinguished institutions of higher education, e.g., maroon and gold for Central Michigan University, blue and gray for Georgetown University, red and black for Rutgers University, green and black for Tulane University, orange and white for the University of Tennessee, and navy blue and orange for the University of Virginia.

THE ACADEMIC MACE

The tradition of the academic mace began in the late 14th century when two ancient instruments, the royal scepter and the battle mace, were combined to form a symbol of the authority of the president or rector of a university. Noblemen carried the battle mace as both a weapon and staff of command, and the sovereign used the regal scepter as a sign of rulership, justice, and authority.

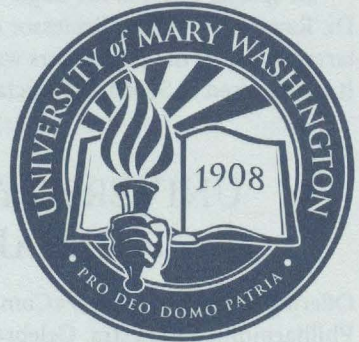

Together with the chain of office, the academic mace indicates that the president of the university is the temporary embodiment of the power, authority, autonomy, and sovereignty vested in the institution represented.

At the University of Mary Washington, the grand marshal carries the academic mace on behalf of the president at academic events such as Commencement exercises, inaugurations, and convocations.

The original University of Mary Washington mace was designed by Asprey and Company of London, England, and was first used for the May 1970 Commencement. The sterling mace carried in today's Commencement ceremony was commissioned to Suzannah Wagner Merritt of Ashland, Va., as a special project of the University's Centennial Celebration in 2008. It comprises numerous symbols of the University, including lapis stones to display the school color; blossoms of dogwood to honor the Virginia state tree; acorns and oak leaves to recall the historic tree at Brompton, home of the president; and a herringbone motif representing Campus Walk. The six prongs are engraved with the six names of the school prior to its becoming a university in 2004; they are adorned with a lapis disc engraved with the University seal. The handle is emblematic of the original Mary Washington mace.

THE UNIVERSITY SEAL

In addition to a book and lamp, signifying knowledge, the University seal denotes the year the institution was founded, 1908, as well as the University motto, Pro Deo Domo Patria, translated from Latin to "For God, home, and country."

PRESIDENTIAL COLLAR

Chains of office, also known as collars, originated in the Middle Ages and are worn today by presidents on ceremonial occasions as part of their regalia. The University of Mary Washington chain is a unique design crafted from gold-plated sterling silver with lapis lazuli gem accents. Symbols important to the history of the University are incorporated in every element of the chain. A large medallion depicting the school seal is flanked by white oak leaves modeled after the stately oak tree at Brompton, home of the president. The names of the previous presidents of this institution alternate with its six historical names on links that are connected with blossoms of dogwood, the Virginia state tree. The chain was unveiled during Commencement 2006 and by tradition is presented to each new president to wear during ceremonial occasions.

THE EAGLE PIPE BAND

Performing at today's Commencement ceremony is the Eagle Pipe Band. The band was formed in 1997 with a small number of Mary Washington students and members of the Fredericksburg community. It has grown steadily each year, adding pipers, drummers, and dancers. In 2008, the band won the Ohio Valley Grade V Championship and the Mid-Atlantic Grade V Championship.

Of special interest, the Eagle Pipe Band was founded by and is under the direction of Dr. Raymond B. Scott, Professor of Chemistry at the University of Mary Washington. The tartan worn by the performers was designed by the University to match the school colors. It is registered in Scotland's official registry of tartans.

UNIVERSITY OF MARY WASHINGTON PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA

Offering music during today's Commencement ceremony is the University of Mary Washington Philharmonic Orchestra. Celebrating its 40th year, the group is recognized as a premier university-community orchestra of national distinction that is a cultural jewel for central Virginia. The orchestra program delivers an outstanding music education for students, high levels of community engagement, and quality entertainment and educational resources for the region.

The UMW Philharmonic Orchestra is under the direction of Dr. Kevin Patrick Bartram, who is concluding his eighth year as orchestra director at the University of Mary Washington.
